

Course Overview

12 Golden Strategies

Technical Analysis course guides us to forecast the future financial price movements based on an examination of past price movements in brief short. It is applicable on stock research, commodity research, currency research & F&O research.

The course should make you confident in reading the stocks and mastering the stock trends. You would gradually be required to quickly evaluate the trend lines and resistances involved, which is very critical for reading the charts.

You should be able to interpret stock chart styles. There are different types of charts used to highlight the market trends like candle chart, stick chart, or a line chart. Each chart style has different strengths and you should know the basic principles of each one of them and use the appropriate chart style.
